

Céleste Brouillard-Ross

Associate

Céleste Brouillard-Ross is an Associate with the Litigation group of the firm. She completed her Bachelors of Law degree from Université de Montréal and joined Lavery as a student in spring 2016.

Céleste's practice focuses primarily on insurance law and product, professional and civil liability.

In her role, she leads many diverse cases, representing professionals, insurers and various companies before all levels of Quebec's civil courts, both as plaintiffs and defendants. Her practice has led her to participate in many settlement conferences that have resulted in out-of-court settlements.

Prior to law school, Céleste studied History and Women's Studies at McGill University. Céleste was highly involved in her university's student life and was a member of several committees, including the Graduation Committee. She is also very active in her community with a focus on tutoring students from first-generation immigrant families.

Concurrent to her legal studies, Céleste also completed an internship at the Canadian Federal Court in Montreal where she worked alongside numerous judges.
