

Frédéric Laflamme

Associate

Frédéric Laflamme joined Lavery's Litigation group in August 2016. He focuses his practice on most areas related to civil and commercial litigation, representing individuals and organizations before the various courts and advising them in the resolution of their disputes.

Before joining Lavery, Mr. Laflamme practised law in the Montréal office of a major national firm before completing a graduate degree in journalism in France. He then spent a decade hosting programs for ICI Radio-Canada Première (a Canadian French-language radio network) in Mauricie and Centre-du-Québec and contributing to many national programs.

In 2000, Mr. Laflamme was a member of the winning team of the Laskin Moot competition in constitutional and administrative law.
