

Mandy Alessandrini

Associate

Mandy Alessandrini is an associate with our litigation group, exercising mainly in family law. Prior to joining Lavery, she was a lawyer with the Attorney General of Quebec's litigation section. Mandy Alessandrini was in private practice for many years acting as counsel, co-counsel as well as mediator; her practice covered family law and contract law. She also conducted mandates with Revenue Quebec for the reform and implementation of the Unclaimed Property Act.

She was a Law Clerk at the Quebec Court of Appeal and Coordinator of one of the leading legal research centers in Canada (Centre de recherche en droit public – CRDP) at the Université de Montréal.

She holds a Master of Laws degree from McGill University's Institute of comparative law and was a doctoral candidate in law at the Université de Montréal. Her graduate studies were devoted to both the civil and the common law focusing on remedies, contracts and torts. Mandy Alessandrini is also an accredited mediator in family, civil, commercial and labour mediation.
