

Josiane L'Heureux

Partner

Josiane L'Heureux is a partner at Lavery's Montréal office and a member of the Labour and Employment group. She works for private and public employers of various fields such as pharmaceuticals, manufacturers, mining, telecommunications as well as the health and social services network.

Ms. L'Heureux is notably known for her ability to well evaluate often complex issues related to labour relations and her concrete approach aimed towards the clients' needs. Recognized for her expertise, she is regularly called upon by upper management in businesses and institutions, both federal and provincial, to give advice in matters relating to labour contracts or their termination, certification, collective labour relations, occupational health and safety including the related penal complaints, human rights, as well as crisis management deriving from work conflicts or other mediatized clashes.

Ms. L'Heureux frequently represents employers' interests before arbitration, civil, administrative and penal tribunals, and works actively with them towards the development of global business strategies, while encouraging a proactive and integrated approach. She acts before the Labour and Relations Board as well as the Canadian Industrial Relations Board, on matters relating to outsourcing, constitutional jurisdiction of tribunals, bad faith bargaining and complaints of unfair practices. She also acts before civil courts in matters relating to injunctions ensuring the application of non-competition and non-solicitation clauses in employment.

Ms. L'Heureux has also been a guest lecturer at numerous conferences, notably for the Canadian Association of Counsel to Employers, of which she is an active member. As a speaker, she is often invited to outline the most recent developments in labour law, which she also teaches at the Montréal Bar School.

In 2017, The Canadian Legal Lexpert® directory listed her in the field of Occupational Health and Safety Law.
