

Is it permissible to communicate with the employees of the opposite party? Do the employees then have a duty of loyalty?

August 1, 2006

These questions arise periodically and always pose problems of conscience for the lawyers and employers concerned. A recent decision of the Court of Appeal sets out the latest state of the law on the subject.