

The Court of Appeal clarifies the extent of a financial institution's duty to inform in situations involving loan insurance

September 1, 2006

On July 17, 2006, the Court of Appeal rendered a judgement concerning the duty of financial institutions making loans to inform and advise their clients. This decision sheds further light on the obligations of group loan insurance policyholders.